WE NOMINATE

Marvin Hillel Bernstein, able specialist in public and educational administration and teacher-writer of the front rank, who as the first Associate Director of Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs is playing a major role in charting fresh approaches to high-level education for public responsibility. To the 42-year old Bernstein and School Director Gardner Patterson jointly belongs the distinction of hammering through the conception of "Princeton Fellows in Public Affairs," the newly announced program which next September will enable nine Federal officials in mid-career to enter upon individually tailored programs of study.

While there is nothing startlingly novel in the idea of having public officials, businessmen and industrialists, bankers and even journalists "return" to college campuses for advanced training, the designation of the initial "Princeton Fellows"—following an exhaustive screening process—is but a single step in the development of professional education for the public service at a level of excellence comparable to the nation's outstanding schools of medicine and law. It is an integral part of the expansion of the Wilson School's post-graduate program made possible by last summer's dramatic announcement of the creation of Foundation "X" with anonymous grants totaling $35,000,000.

The interests, achievements and potential of the first crop of "Princeton Fellows" are suggestive of the capacities of this 43-year old native of Mankato, Minn., a Princetonian since 1916, chairman of the University's Department of Politics and in 1960-61 Ford Foundation Research Professor in Government. This past March, with Bernstein's elevation to his pivotal post, Patterson emphasized Bernstein's involvement in the Wilson School's graduate program since its inception in 1948, his experience on all levels of government, his professional interests, and his deep concern for the education of young men and women on the threshold of policy-making responsibilities in public affairs.

A consultant over the years to a number of Federal agencies, including the U.S. Bureau of the Budget and the Economic Stabilization Agency, and widely publicized for his contributions a decade ago to the Connecticut Commission on State Government Organizations, Bernstein is the kind of scholar whose knowledge and executive abilities are frequently tapped by government. He was, for instance, the lone non-lawyer singled out in 1960 as a member of the Organizing Committee for a permanent President's Conference on Administrative Procedure and twice in the 1950's was called to Israel as adviser on government administration to the Office of the State Controller.

Bernstein, among whose publications are numbered "The Job of the Federal Executive," "The Politics of Israel" and "American Democracy in Theory and Practice," the last a leading college text in American Government, helped make headlines in 1960 as Associate Staff Director of a "task force" sponsored by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and concerned with "Federal Conflict of Interest Laws." This Special Committee called for a "thorough-going reconstruction of existing laws"—a program achieving a balance between the country's need for protection against conflicts of interest and its crying need for high-talent personnel.

For sensing the vast differences separating education for the profession of government from training in detailed management techniques; for helping launch such bold educational ventures as the Princeton Seminar in Washington which will meet periodically in Washington to consider important, continuing problems of public policy; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

FIREMEN STILL STRONG

After 200 Years. When getting Mayor William White told the volunteer firemen of Princeton, assembled for their annual inspection, that the number of volunteers was numbered and that the future would see a paid fire department, for Princeton, he was spoken of as being "old hat" to 1756. It is still strong and vital in the life of the community.

The 1756 unit was a student group from three present fire companies date back to Civil War days. Today, in 1962, there are 150 volunteer firemen in Princeton, one engine in Princeton Engine Co. Company Number 1, Mercer Engine Company Number 3 and Hook and Ladder and Chemical Engine.

Princeton is given good service by its dedicated fire fighters. Inasmuch as the companies have found that the men and often highly competitive volunteers of the smaller towns have often better at their jobs than those professionals, the frequently underpaid professionals, of the big cities.

For example, according to the Princeton Fire Department Organization of New Jersey, the members of a frame house in Newark, a city with a class A all-professional fire department.

WE NEED Buckets! Equipment was hard to come by. In fact, until 1800, when the company asked the College of New Jersey for 35 more fire buckets. Eighteen months later, members of the company kept asking for more buckets and asked, "Where are the buckets?" but it was two years and three months after the first request before the buckets materialized.

Shortly after this, the company made a deal with the College allowing it to use and direct the student brigade's fire equipment when keeping it repaired and answering College calls. The money involved: 6 pounds, 16 shillings, 3 pence.

It was about this time that

THE VALOR OF THE PAST. Heavy leather buckets, like the one at the far right, used to be the only means to carry water to a fire, and the firemen of Mercer Engine Company Number Three used to keep such buckets in their homes, ready for use. The old helmet belongs to another era, too, though, a dramatic helmet—well, what's a fire company without a parade? (Star Photo)

ment pays 16½ cents per $1000 the firemen, tried, with poor per year fire insurance on his success, to discourage the stupid practice of lighting bonfires in Nassau Street.)

On New Year's Day, 1873, a frame building was destroyed by fire, and a spirited editorial in The Princeton Whig noted, "We have had ample proof that taking sides will not stop the ravages of fire. This event should prove an additional spur to efforts to renew our fire department more efficient."

Thirty years later, the problem remained: "Number One Engine, we think, would not be worth," stated "The Standard" for September 22, 1866, "Old Number 3 engine took a leak, and the water on the flames, but at least some of the water leaked out of the good-for-nothing hose. The new engine was taken, as usual, and dried off with use without loss. Might we well have bought hose without expense?"

Six years later, there was agitation for a fire alarm system based on a strong argument that firemen should not have to run to the scenes yelling "Fire!" when their neighbors might better be spent fighting the flames.

The Borough Council took over the companies in 1874 and support came through taxes from them on but the acquisition of new equipment and the building of new firehouses still brought out the community to celebrate,

Celebration. When English Company Number 1 bought its new bell in 1885, they had a parade and a reception, and four teams of horses hauled the bell to the firehouse station to Chestnut Street to the music of the Jugtown Band.

When Hook and Ladder bought its new hook and ladder in 1889, the men marched, with the two engine companies and the stalwart Princeton Fife and Drum Corps and the South Carolina Guards, from the firehouse station to pick up an aerial hook and ladder with 2,000 feet of hose.

Firehouses have moved, but not much, with the passage of time. In 1867, Mercer Company 3 bought a lot on Chambers Street, $3000, he awarded to William Ladd for the contract to build a firehouse for $4,200. Golden is still an active game in the Princeton contracting business. He has now moved his office to Chambers in 1933. The Engine Number 1 built by Chestnut and Ladd is a quadruplet, one in 1915, and Hook and Ladder built its Witherspoon firehouse in 1891. Another addition was made in 1944 for $4,250. The present Hook and Ladder structure on North Harrison was built in 1957.

And So Today. Today's firemen in Princeton, no longer required to snatch a leather bucket from the wall as a volunteer in the middle of a fire, firemen can now fire companies reaching their firehouse by car, and more precisely where the fire is. The coded signal is for firemen who can't get to their firehouse (assuming a car that won't start, etc.). All firemen who can, are urged to go to the firehouse, there cutting down on the number of cars converging on a fire.

It is impossible to tell how good a fireman a man will be until he is trained, but anyone can learn to be a fireman. If man hasn't the zeal and the enthusiasm to be a fireman, the companies don't want him.

Firemen are trained at the Princeton Counts Fire School which meets every Friday at the Nottingham Firehouse in Harrison Street under the guidance of a retired Fire Captain and other experts. During the winter, the old hands teach the rookies how to handle tools, how to wear a gas mask. In the summer evenings, by a fire hydrant (far removed from children, if possible), the rookies learn how to pull a hose from a truck without breaking his back, how to protect himself from the intense heat from a fire and how to hold his own self against the pressure of water pounding out of a hose at 875 pounds per square inch. He will learn, too, that ill-written letters to "Dear Sir" even when he is hosed, can be quite effective in getting you out of trouble.

Much to Learn. The hydraulics involved in pumping, the use of complex gauges and the care of hoses—all these are part of the rookies' curriculum.

There is a science to stretching and coiling a ladder quickly and quickly, and the apprentice fireman must learn it. He must learn how hot a fire can be, and how to put his mask and probe through the dense smoke of a burning house, searching under debris and in corners, all this his experience touches for frightened victims of the fire.

For the first year, the rookies will not pass back of the line of regular firemen, observing and helping. Sometimes the training goes for two or three years, depending on experience and facility in learning.

The best training, of course, is a really big fire, but the number of these would rather have training longer and less intensive.

Once voted in and trained, a fireman stays, unless he actually moves away from Princeton. One of the oldest is Edward Drake, Jr., of Number 3. He joined the company for 65 years, joining at a time when men could be under 21 and still be firemen. Mr. Drake still goes to fires. Retirement doesn't suit him.

ROUND-UP
The Princeton High School Choir's international tour of Europe is scheduled to come to an end this week with arrival at Idlewild Airport in New York on Saturday. The choir, which had been chartered to bring the students back to Princeton, Mr. and Mrs. Greetz of 38 Laurel Road were notified just prior to departure of the bus from Idlewild, and parents wishing to know the approximate time of arrival in Princeton called WA 4-3026 late that night . . . for the fourth in Linda Almgren's appealing

We heard of a report in a back issue of the Ladies Home Journal that Roland Young, a reporter, said, "I'm a self-made man, but I think I had to do it all over again. I'd call in someone else." This started us thinking about the many stories we've read about "self-made men" without the guys who say, in effect, "I did it all on my own." Sometimes, it may seem that way, but actually, does anyone ever really do it alone? If you think about it, it seems that somewhere along the line there is frequently a helping hand—sometimes so far behind the scenes that we aren't even aware of it. It may be a friend in the background, or a loved one, or perhaps even a combination of happy accidents that helps get the job done—the goal won. And we are reminded of the old adage, that God helps those who help themselves. No, we can't really do it all alone, and it is our business to provide the friendly, reliable service when you need it, and our pleasure to be of help. What To Do If Fire Breaks Out Borough residents should call Borough police WA 4-4141, and Township residents should call Township police, WA 4-3105, in case of fire. If the fire is minor, police will send a patrol car which will raise the alarm, and they will always turn in the alarm when 6 p.m. and 7 a.m. for a home because there may be sleeping inhabitants during those hours.

For those who live in the village, the alarm is pulled at Borough police headquarters, ringing the two "log horns" on the Harrison and Chestnut Street firehouses and the bell on the Chambers Street firehouse.

Four sirens will automatically tone each at the Fire Institute, Princeton High School, First National Bank and Borough Hall.)

Firemen reaching their firehouse by car, will turn on the alarm and advise police of the location and jobs precisely where the fire is. The coded signal is for firemen who can't get to their firehouse (assuming a car that won't start, etc.). All firemen who can, are urged to go to the firehouse, there cutting down on the number of cars converging on a fire.

TOWN TOPICS' annual forecast of Princeton University's football prospects for 1962 begins this week, page 24. The Princeton football team appears to be the year with the Eastern Giants exhibition game scheduled for September 8 in Palmer Stadium.

There is a science to stretching and coiling a ladder quickly and quickly, and the apprentice fireman must learn it. He must learn how hot a fire can be, and how to put his mask and probe through the dense smoke of a burning house, searching under debris and in corners, all this his experience touches for frightened victims of the fire.

Robert McCloskey, 49, 6 Chestnut Street, was injured last week when struck by a vehicle on Broad Street, Yatko, 20, 11 Dickinson Street. Mr. McCloskey was treated at Princeton Hospital for minor injuries to his head and right leg. A spinal accident occurred when he was crossing Nassau between Chestnut and Olden.

It hardly seemed possible in late June, but the makings of a drought are once more at hand . . . the Princeton area has had a measurable precipitation deficit for the month while it will be another week before conditions become serious, they are currently extremely dry.

Green stamp savers can add to their stamp collection by answering a classified ad in the Sunday edition of the Princeton Daily. Advertisers will receive a book of stamps to lay one taking two of the furry people off their hands.

LIGHT HOUSEKEEPING

Done By Borough Council. It was a cool summer evening Tuesday and the Mayor, and Council were discussing housekeeping. Major issues were left under the carpet.

Robert F. Mooney, Borough clerk-treasurer, was asked about the newly-created position of Borough administrator. The appointment, effective Sunday, clarified, and he outlined his responsibilities, lifting up in detail work from the mayor's shoulders. (See story, page 16.)

Dr. Elwood F. Godfrey told Mayor Henry S. Patterson:

"I am appreciative of the time, effort and contribution that you and your predecessors have given to this job. It is high time that such assistance be given to the mayor. We have no reason to require that you are fulfilling the demands on your time away from your family."

"I really feel that anything that I can do to help or be of help is well worthwhile."

Borough Engineer Arthur T. Brooks reported that Arthur T. Harriet Drive culvert for protection against Harry's Brook was temporarily stalled by the county. Robert S. Christie, 69, Hamlet Drive, whose garage the brook flowed last year, hasn't missed a council meeting in months. He told Council, "I'm going to call every day until I know when this work will start."

The mayor laughed and said, "You know, Mr. Christie, when this culvert is finished, we're going to miss you." Mr. Christie, "Well, come back," said Mr. Christie.

The application of Sgt. John F. Petrone of the Township police for the taxi license held by his son, John, was approved. Sgt. Petrone was acting in his mother's behalf, Councilman Walker noted.

Grotto License Set. The application for a liquor license by the Grotto Restaurant was approved. Owner Gabriel Pieniazek, who has asked the mayor that "we depend upon licensees such as yourself to help police such a set-up as we have," is enforcing the age limits and the other ABC laws.

"We advise you, as we did the other licensee holder last month, to accept no excuse in these matters. You know the law."

Other household matters brought up included Councilman Godfrey's report that parking meter receipts, as of the end of June, are $1,000 less than at a year ago. The fire department had no general alarms in three months and there were no "still" alarms in June. Fire Chief Packer commented that "the alarms are being turned off" and Dr. Godfrey added that the Borough's insurance rates are as low as it is possible to get with a volunteer fire department.

Chief Packer then went him one better, with "I think our fire department is as well equipped as the one in New York City. The finance chairman rejoined, "I pray then, that you're not going to ask for any new equipment?" The Chief laughed.

Concerning the "swings" to such items as a report on trees trimmed, plans to reconstruct a portion of Franklin Avenue, signs for the playgrounds, golf course maintenance, and Officer Hunter's high average of 93.3 at the police training school in Seaford.

No Lock-up For Ladies. A report on the Borough jail from Lloyd W. McCorkle of the Department of Institutions was presented by Mr. Walker. The inspectors once again found the facilities inadequate. They stated that the female unit was "non-existent."

Mayor Patterson noted that the report suggested that female prisoners be taken to the county jail in Trenton. "Life would actually be tougher," he said, "if you were a female."

Officers tabled pending further investigation included the survey on parking meters, a proposed ordinance adopting the state color minimum usage requirement and the selection of "open space" sites in the Township.

The housework done, everybody fled.

LAND SALE APPROVED

By Choir College. The trustees of Westminster Choir College have approved the sale of 14 acres of college-owned land north of Franklin Avenue to the Borough Board of Education in developing an educational center around Princeton High School.

Completion of the sale is contingent on approval by Borough Council. The mechanics of street alignments and other details connected with usage of the area by both the board and the college.

Lee H. Bristol, Jr., choir college president, said the sale was made with "great reluctance" because of the restrictive effect such a sale puts on

News Of The THEATRES

"THE ENTERTAINER"
Sam McManigal's "The Princeton Players' second season began bravely last Thursday evening with John Osborne's "The Entertainer." The opening night was directed by Sam McManigal "in the interest of a more polished performance," and from several points of view that addition was well taken. The five principals in the cast turned in performances ranging from good to poor, and as a ensemble left much to be desired.

On the plus side is the theatre itself, whose greasy walls have been whitewashed for greater success. In the production the chairs, some hard, some padded, were arranged in tiers on three sides of the small setting of the Rice stage. The lighting, through ingenious use of lighting, another setting of the music hall was created on an upper level. The Princeton Players staff deserves congratulations for imagination and skill in turning a garage into an intriguing theatre.

In their choice of vehicles, the Players seem to be continuing the summer's policy of presenting mostly off-the-beaten-path unknown works, rather than the classic products which tend to fall apart in the hands of such a company. I am thinking of those who saw Jean Gutfreund's "The Maid's" (among others) in 1961 will testify. However, the quality of such ventures depends on the strength of a very few players. Unlike the two in the General play, Rod McManigal was not alone in his creation of the lead role, although he struggled valiantly to interpret the petty viciousness and small pathos of Archie Rice. He failed to make Archie larger than life, and as a result his portrayal aroused little sympathy. This lack was especially evident in the music hall numbers where the chorus girls and Britannia were superfluous and the wordy kind of bad taste was dominant.

"FACE SLOW." "The Entertainer" has built-in disadvantages: it is a talky play and the product of a young man. Part of the responsibility for the tired atmosphere and air of petulant talk which pervaded its performance lies with Sam McManigal (director) and Paul Gleckler (production coordinator). The 80-min-like play was padded with a prologue, and continued with few interludes for almost three hours.

On the plus side there was can be attributed to Anthony de Courcy (Bill Rice) and Miss Paraschek (Pamela). Both had good voices, used them and other acting skills to good advantage. Mrs. Paraschek was particularly good in her scenes, and her style was completely inconsistent with Mr. McManigal's low-keyed portrayal.

Alan Raeburn did well by Frank Rice, and his song in the third act put across superbly the despair and downplay. Again the impact of his delivery put Mr. McManigal's music hall patter in the shade. Carrie Bradshaw Jean was almost invisible in the audience scenes and practically deadpan throughout the play; her mannerisms were the picture of the maid's indegence and downgrading what little "message" there was to the vanishing point.

After the curtain call shortcomings, the evening was an interesting one, and 259 Nassau may very well be the location of polished as well as stimulating theatre in the ensuing weeks.

THEATRE TO OPEN

"DOUGLASS." The Children's Summer Theatre at Princeton College will open its second season this Thursday with a 10:30 a.m. production of "Rip Van Winkle." Other performances will be Friday and also on July 19 and 20.

Thirty-two boys and girls aged 8 to 15, will appear in the play, which will be directed by Edward Berkowitz, son of Dr. and Mrs. Monroe Berkowitz, Crestwood Drive. Director Elissa Farber, who played Rip's wife, She is the daughter of Remigio Pane, 69 Lincoln Avenue, Highland Park.

Lowell Swartzell, assistant director of the Children's Summer Theatre, dramatized the Washington Irving story. C. C. Branson, Princeton High School art teacher, Robert Trocino has designed Dutch colonial costumes. Tickets are 75 cents each and may be reserved in advance by calling Charter 7-1766, ext. 7238.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY WHEN MAKING A MOVIE
Richard Knight, a local author, has written a book on how to make money when making a movie. The manager of the Playhouse and the Garden has only one comment to make on Princeton moviegoers:

"The general public blasts sex pictures," he said, "but when you get a 'message' picture, they just don't patronize it."

"St. Francis of Assisi" did not do well, but we put it up for about four days and it was highly recommended by the Cainites, but it flopped all over the country, so did "Dog of Flanders".

"On the other hand," La Dolce Vita" did very well," he said. The three-hour film, based on the novel by Aldous Huxley, was recommended by the Cainites, but it flopped all over the country, so did "Dog of Flanders".

A reviewer straddled the fence, he said. "La Dolce Vita" is either a startling revelation of sick modern life," he wrote "or sheer sensationalism that is shocking, immoral or worse." "Dolce" was a hit in Princeton and everywhere else.

Box Office Successes. Other films which did well at the box office point of view were "The Children's Hour," about latent lesbianism; "Odd Obsession," involving impotence; "Psycho," and "Walk on the Wild Side."

It is almost a foregone conclusion that "The Parent Trap," Fox's newest, will draw a good audience." Dick Knight commented.

Few Family Pictures Succeed. One of the best attended family pictures was a Fred MacMurray comedy, "The Absent-minded Professor," so absentminded that it missed his own wedding three times! "Swiss Family Robinson," brought out a crowd and so did young Hayley Mills in "The Parent Trap." But the list is short.

The most successful film cast at Princeton last summer, however, combined extremely sophisticated love stories with comedy, and pre-showing publicity found George Peppard, Keitel and Bing Crosby in the leads, broke all attendance records. The runner-up was "Lower Deck," Burt Lancaster, Elizabeth Taylor and Rock Hudson's Breakfast at Tiffany's" featuring Audrey Hepburn "pulled well." Mr. Knight said Publicity sure does help. "The Parent Trap" movie played a potent part in their success... which bodes well for the investors in "Cleopatra."

"The Mists," drew the most curious reaction from Princeton audiences. The film, written by Arthur Miller, starring Clark Gable and other names as Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe.

Princeton people came in droves to see it, but "we had more walk-outs on this than

Actors' Revolt

What is an actor without a playwright? Pirandello's "Tonight We Improve," which explores this theme, was presented by the Princeton Players Tuesday through Saturday at 259 Nassau Street.

Angie Dickinson plays the lead in this drama about the revolt of actors from formal restrictions of playwright and director. A mixture with moments of wry humor, it was produced with much success by the Princeton Theater Company, New York. It forms the last part of Pirandello's trilogy on the theater. Paul Drinker, summer director, is in charge for the Players' will direct.

Others in the cast will be George Negus, Lynn Milner, Virginia de Angelis and Don Mariati.

I never remember seeing in 23 years in the picture business, Dick Knight, "the kind of book they didn't understand" the story — in general, it was an unpleasant story. I also think that because it was Gable's last picture it was a lot to do with it."

An off-beat note is the success of the grand opera series held at the Gardner during January.

"Who goes to the movies?" The Playhouse audience ranges in age from 16 to about 35 years. At the Garden, where the "serious" and "art" films play, the moviegoers are a little older.

As for Dick Knight, a graduate of Duke University and a former World War II sergeant in the 196th Coast Anti-aircraft Artillery, he's at the Princeton Players through the recesses, his turns on the late show.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Mr. Hobbs Takes A Vacation July 11-17. Jimmy Stewart, Maureen O'Hara and Fabian are the stars in a family drama which will open at Beach Miss O'Hara, as pretty as ever, overrides the desire of her husband, who wants to go to two and rents a bungalow for the entire family, which also includes their married daughters, their respective husbands, and offspring, as well as their 14-year-old daughter, Linda Peter, and Michael Burns. The confusion mounts through the charming humorist, Reginald Gardiner, and Valerie Velardi, who may be seen here in pursuit of Stewart. Comment: slick comedy.

Advise and Consent (July 13-24) is based on the concept that politics is an unsavory backwater, people being vulgar individuals. Producer Otto Preminger has emphasized the dramatic interplay of personalities in the President's office, the Senate, and especially the Senate of his nominee for Secretary of State. Henry Fonda is a calm, resolute Left-Wing Senator. Charlton Heston leads the opposition as the vengeful southerner senator, and Walter Pidgeon puts in an excellent performance as the straightforward northerner leader.

1100'S SET THE STYLE

For 1962 Shoppers, North of Princeton on the Flemington traffic circle is the Grand Furniture Store, an establishment consisting of 10,000 square feet of colonial furniture, and that's probably more than you could have found in all of Princeton in colonial times.

The Granetz people are particularly proud of the fact that all the pieces are made of solid woods, without a trace of veneer. Cherry, maple, birch or pecan are available in a price range that starts with $100.00 and goes on to "modestly high," and if you want to know what those terms mean, we can offer a reproduction of a bedroom suite at $189 consisting of chest-on-chest, double dresser with mirror and panel bed.

Within the shop, you'll find Hitchcock, Pennsylvania House, Cushman, Drake Smith, Thomasville chair and Simmons for bedding.

Granetz includes the term "colonial" generically to mean informal rural pieces, and offers in this category such unique items as a simple English-style bedroom ensemble made of a rich light pecan executed with cane head board, a washstand with drawers below the end tables and the dressers have a pleasant massiveness that will recommend them to housewives whose husbands grow at slim-lined, feminine furniture.

Another pecan wood bedroom set, this one by Thomasville, has a chest-on-chest and a long dresser with mirror designed with such clean-lined classic lines that they will still be in style and taste 25 years from now.

For a child's room, or for a guest room, Granetz suggests a correlated group in maple consisting of waist-high bookcases, louvered door cabinets and cupboards, all in maple and oak, all of which can be mixed, matched and arranged as a family moves from house to house.

A little girl would love to have a room, a low-priced, solid cherry letter bid with ruffled valance and a permanent chair in wood to match, covered with a bright calico print.

Upholstered furniture in the colonial manner comes in

"Wow...are these peppers HOT!"

That might be a good way for Doc to get the patient to say "Ah-h-h!" Don't pull off that medical check-up. It's easier to keep your health with "preventative medicine" than to regain health when lost.

many sizes these days, and you may have a sofa that is 54" wide, but it's a solid one, 96" long, and solid the whole way. Continental, Congressional (La-Z-Boy makes a similar chair, too, did you know?)

On the dining side, Granetz has a series of solid maple sets, many with a solid "maple top" and solid solid legs, an inch-thick circle of solid plastic, so much like maple you can almost see the syrup. A great deal for kitchen chairs, as you can see.

Accessories in this Colonial establishment include small candle-holders, lamps, sun reproductions and paintings and the painted incidental furniture done by Pennsylvania House. Ever consider a picture frame? They have them and cheap, with a Pennsylvania House hutch done in, say, a rich, glowing red, show off your collector's china?

Nikkorex F, a single lens reflex camera in the same quality bracket as the Nikkon F. Equipped with an all-metal shutter, it has a depth of field preview button and costs less than $200.

If vacation lies ahead for you, Photography and Art recommends the Bell and Howell movie camera with zoom lens and electric eye, for under $100.

De Jure makes that intriguing new Polaroid frameline Polaroid, which will take 72 pictures on a 36-picture roll. Excellent for travelers, as you can see. It has an 1/250 sec. 1.250 mm lens, a zoom and take color slides or black and white prints. The cost, under $40, is as compact as the little camera itself.

famous old masterpiece of hor-

Jane is made to suffer the pangs of

Dear Princeton:

Three fourths of our tour is over! It seems like such a long time since we left Princeton on that hot June afternoon. In some ways, it is hard to realize how far away we have come. We thought so quick and we are living with so many familiar friends. But when we get into the middle of a strange city, then we feel we are far removed from our families.

One of the consequences of the trip we have heard nothing about is that we will take some time to catch up with all that has happened in the world. Another result—the chaperones have lost ten years and Mrs. Hibbush at least 20. It's great!

Last Friday, June 29, we took the indirect route, stopping for museums and cathedrals along the way, and drove from Karlsruhe to Freiburg. This night we arrived at Maximmum, we gave our first concert consisting entirely of Webern. The audience was so thrilled with our performance that we had the opportunity to hear Webern that, for an encore, we repeated both Western Cantatas. When we finally left the hall, the applause was still thundering and the noise from the fests hanging on the tables (a sign of approval here) was deafening. All the Chorus was in high spirits. The audience was so responsive to us afterwards to compliment us on the performance and to present Hill Princeton's German. She made all the personal introductions when we sang to German audiences.

Saturday our time was completely free except for lunch at Dattler's—a restaurant situated on a hill with a beautiful view of the town of Freiburg.

Sunday, July 1, was our most spectacular day so far. Truly in the morning we left Freiburg and German and went into Switzerland. We stopped for a few minutes in Basel and in Böfingen. Then we entered old town with narrow streets but when we got there it was bedecked with hundreds of colorful flags and banners which caught our eyes who looked as if they were left over from our F-rade. It turned out that an "inter-Carter" track meet was being held there that day.

We stopped for about ten minutes by the lake in Lucerne and then went on. All the as the mountains began to appear on both sides of the road, the excitement of all of us increased.

The time we had reached the east-wheel train and had started up "our" mountain, Rothorn Kulin, (7,700 feet)

All the as the mountains began to appear on both sides of the road, the excitement of all of us increased.

The air was cold and brisk and each of us felt he could go out and conquer the world. All the as the mountains began to appear on both sides of the road, the excitement of all of us increased.

Next morning, the sunrise and the appearance of a range of snow-covered mountains was a sight to behold. The whole panorama was so magnificently beautiful that none of us wanted to leave.

That Monday was the Hibbush 12th wedding anniversary. Gretchen Ward, for the church, had prepared a meal and ordered a cake at Brunnen, to celebrate the occasion. The Hibbushes seemed really touched and delighted with the surprise.

That same Monday afternoon, the Chorus was dispersed into homes at Zurich for a ride. By this time we were too tired to appreciate a warm bath and a comfortable bed. Though we had loved the mountains and the weather had been beautiful, it was low, cold and the beds were hard as rock.

They had ten people and the divisions were indicated

Two Reactions to PHS Choir Performances

Two reactions to performances given in Europe by the Princeton High School Choir have been sent to TOWN TOPICS. One, by Sister Mary, vice-director of the State Conservatory of the Hague, and head of its department for the teaching of music in higher places of learning.

D. Stigmar wrote: "After having listened to the second part of the concert of yesterday evening, I cannot refrain from giving expression to my admiration for what the Princeton High School Choir achieved. The Buxtehude cantata and the Magnificat as far as the Choir's euphonic qualities are concerned, but the achievement of Webern's canons is incredible."

"Parity of tone, accuracy of intonation, musical theory—let me add—immaculate! Such an appearance makes it clear to everybody that in our country the school musical movement is in its highest form. It is an abhorrence to modesty and to very hard work."

The second report came from J. C. Wenzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin J. Wenzel, 157 Shady Brook Lane who is studying this summer by a pillow. Many of us stay in our clothes and coats certainly no one changed out. When we left the mounting at the Kepler Gymnasium in Freiburg, Germany, as a member of the Choate School Summer German Study Group.

His letter: "To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

I am a student of Princeton High School living in Freiburg, Germany, for the summer. I had the great honor to hear the PHS Choir sing two Webern cantatas which I received favorably that the Choir was asked to sing both again, as enclosures.

I would like to take the opportunity to say that America, and Princeton in particular, should be especially proud of what we have almost impossible Webern with such accuracy and interpretation as our choir did Friday night. On behalf of everyone in Europe who has heard the choir, I would like to thank those many people who made this Chorus trip possible. The students in the Choir are our finest diplomats abroad and belong to an organization in which we should take special pride."

Dear Princeton:

The first night, we slept. The second night we sang.

Our program was a long one: both Carnegie Hall and the "Stravinsky," "Symphonie de Psaumes" and then the complete "Magnificat." The Webers went all right and then something unexpected happened during the Stravinsky.

Suddenly the music began to stop. It simply became impossible to continue. We were caught up in the same way. A few seconds after we finished, the clapping and stamping of feet began. It was then that I had something of what we had felt had been shared with the audience. The soloists took their bows, as did the orchestra, Mr. and Mrs. Hilbush, but they still applauded. The Choir finally left the stage but the soloists and Mr. Hilbush had to return for still more bows.

Wednesday, July the Fourth, we sang at the American Embassy in Berne, Switzerland. Apparently this is the biggest American diplomatic social life.

We sang before about 500 mostly Swiss people, a kind of select open house cocktail party, in surroundings that reminded me of the Hospital Fete. For the first and only time, we sang Negro spirituals, patriotic songs of other lands and our own. Only a few listened but only a few could care less.

Our last number was a dramatic arrangement of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The Swiss audience couldn't help but listen and the audience joined in the last chorus. One American AES (from Illinois) who had attended the afternoon concert said there was not one American there who remained dry-eyed.

On Thursday, we checked out of our hotels at Oberheben, and traveled to Trummenbach to see the waterfall installed the previous day. Then headed for Kloster Alpirsbach to take a plane for Paris. We flew in two shifts and by the time everyone (including the Bishop-Untis [sic] (head of the Cite Universitaire) it was at least 10:30 or 11 p.m.

Today will be a long day—seating the plane in Paris, seeing on the Seine by Bateau Mouche, a concert at UNESCO and the Paris Grand Opera. We will leave the Foundation on the 18th and return at approximately 12 noon.

On Monday we will fly to London, our last stop. We will stay there only three nights before returning to New York. We will, of course do a great deal of sight-seeing. We could not have had a more memorable time, but I feel sure we will appreciate more than ever the advantages of home sweet home.

A LOOK AHEAD: Kenneth E. Michael, new Princeton High School principal, will take time this week to discuss some of his plans for the coming year.

Mr. Michael had barely had time to tour the building and shake a few hands when he was asked about his experiences with high school students. "You have to realize that they're adults," he said, settling into his unfamiliar office. "They have the same ambitions—the only difficulty is that they haven't had the experience. They have eyes glued with humor as he spoke. "They have the whole establishment behind them."

He had just taken on his new job and went on: "I don't really know how to express this—but when a problem with a student comes up, well, I'm on his side."

He had just taken on his new job and went on: "I don't really know how to express this—but when a problem with a student comes up, well, I'm on his side."

World War II Veteran, Mr. Michael, who saw action in the tank corps during World War II under General George "Old Blood and Guts" Patton, made his first appearance on the school's problem at Mount Pleasant. It was a simple question of tactics. He divided a year's work into four quarters and assigned one quarter to each unit. If until he'd passed the test for Unit I,

"You can't solve equations with two unknowns," you can't solve with three unknowns," he said. "Most pupils can pass algebra, but not all in the same amount of time. Some take a year and a half. A student is guaranteed a 'C' and on the transcript we recorded the number of weeks he required to pass the course."

"This basic theory could be applied to mathematics, some sciences, and English," he said. "It's just that depends upon the preceding need for success. I don't know enough about the situation here to be able to say how much time would be applicable. This is just an across-the-board theory of education."

At the same time that he selected the top class for his first course for some, he helped others sprint ahead. Twenty seniors completed the college freshman course in calculus and analysis of geometry this past June. Another group has charged ahead in languages.

Marks Rated in Points. He also met another dilemma head-on in "Parents are justified in their concern," he said two years ago at the national convention of secondary school principals. "When a student in a top ability section receives a 'C' mark, it's a low ability section receives a 'B'."

The marking system adopted at Mount Pleasant based class rank on an accumulation of points during the four school years. Under this point system, an "A" equalled five points, an "B" four points and so forth in each section. But, the top section had a multiplying factor of six, the middle group five, and the low sections four. Thus a student in the top section could acquire 30 points, the record being 45. This pointed up the factor of six for his ability group. The plan had the general effect of raising one letter grade for the top students and lowering by one letter the slower students.

But Kenneth Michael, full of vitality as he is, will take a long look before he proposes innovations at the high school. "It's too early to tell," he said. "I know whether any changes should be made here at Princeton. I plan to meet each department chairman before the beginning of school so that they can orient me as to each individual department. I want to know how Princeton has been taught differently than I have known in the past."

He and Mrs. Michael, their books still unpacked, have moved into the Nassau Apartments. His wife will teach fourth grade in Ewing Town ship this fall.

"I feel that we're fortunate to be here," he said, and flashed a million dollar smile.

DEATH STALKED AT ROCKY HILL: Onlookers at the Millstone River are tense as rescuers attempt to pull Stanley Busza, 47, of Perth Amboy, and his son onto the rocky bank beyond the spillway. The near-tragedy occurred Saturday afternoon. The father had reached the teenager midstream, but the struggling boy dragged him under. Two unknown swimmers used an inflated inner tube to pull them to safety. At that point Arthur Gersbach, 20, of Carteret, and Otto Johnson of the Rocky Hill Reservoir, arrived and administered oxygen. The boy recovered immediately. The father was taken to Princeton Hospital, treated for submersion, and released. (Staff Photo)

Budget Figures Corrected
To the Editor of Town Topics:
In my July 8, 1964 issue, I read "Both the Boy and Girl Scouts received recommended grants from the Girl Scout Fund, $14, up from $9,360 and the Girls for $6,820, up from $5,500." We understand that information you furnished us on the Girl Scout budget figures, but we feel correction should be made.

The facts, the Girl Scout request was for $2,100, the recommended grant was for $3,400. The Girl Scouts' only allowances were for the purchase of cookie money ($689 net for 1961) and camp fees ($19 net for 1961).

It would be erroneous to recommend Girl Scouting on a basis of being "the cheapest thing going" in girls' programs. The high quality of Girl Scouting is, however, definitely family oriented. We believe for us to be able to take pride in Princeton's low dollar cost.

We are particularly fortunate here in having a number of unusually well qualified volunteers to bring Scouting to the girls of Princeton. We will continue our efforts toward increased professional services (and resultant increased fees), and resultant increased quality of service. We are presently and justifiably proud of a year-round program for 446 girls, guided by 130 adult leaders, a life of community service, international friendship and a comprehension and appreciation of nature through camping and outdoor living experience.

SPEED SIGNS TESTED

For Test On Turnpike. New inductron-controlled electronic able speed signs are being tested on the New Jersey Turnpike. The test is being made at Hightstown, milepost
10, southbound.

The sign is five feet wide by five feet high and has the word "speed" in 12-inch black bettering letters, with the

with the speed numerals just below. The speed on the Turnpike, 60, will be white or green signs. As traffic conditions change, the speed signs will be changed by means of the new radio control system from 20 to 55 miles, and are determined by 25-watt wall

The signs may also be changed manually.

The intention of the speed sign is to give a more uniform flow of traffic through all traffic conditions. Under present conditions, speed limits on the turnpike are established manually by the State Police on signs placed five miles apart. Also at the present time, there is no method to change the speed limits at any speed desired.

New "TELSTAR" relays phone calls and TV pictures for first time!

New Jersey scientists play key role in developing Bell System's active communications satellite

The world's first private enterprise communications satellite is now being used for dramatic experiments in re-laying telephone calls and television internationally.

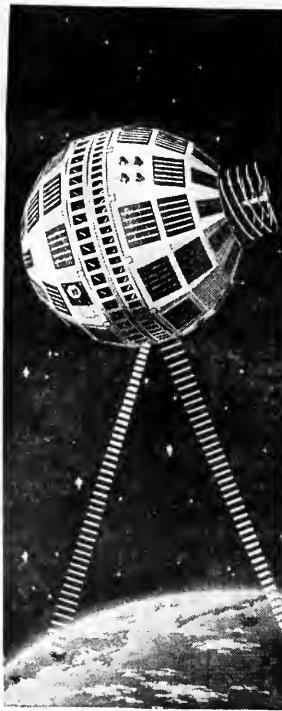

Its name: Telstar. It was launched from Cape Canaveral at Bell System expense by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The satellite was built at a special Bell Laboratories plant in Hillsdale, New Jersey — underwent testing at Bell Labs in Murray Hill and Whippny — and the signals transmitted via Telstar from the ground station at Andover, Maine, were picked up by the huge horn antenna at Bell Labs in Holmdel, New Jersey.

Telstar amplifies and transmits signals beamed to it from one ground station to another — perhaps an ocean away. The new satellite makes it possible for voices, TV pictures and data messages to leap thousands of miles in a new and exciting way.

Telstar is a major experimental step toward the world-wide satellite communications system first proposed as a practical venture at Bell Telephone Laboratories. Progress toward such a system would not have reached its present state without continuing research and development by the private communications industry.

Above all else, Telstar is the latest achievement in an unending Bell System quest — the search for ways to make your telephone service still better, more economical, and more useful.

TWO HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE says Howard Grant (right) in feeling that American men do not make a mistake in seeking serious advice from their wives. James Mehl has the same opinion. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: Do American men make a mistake in going to their wives for serious advice? As a husband, has your suggestion?

Where asked: Around town.

Howard Grant, Phillipsburg carpenter: No, that's one of the objects of being married. Marriage is a 50-50 deal. I know I wouldn't go out and buy a house, for example, without my wife looking at it. A man just can't go ahead and do everything his way. Two heads are better than one.

James Mehl, Lincoln Highway, Kingston, carpenter: I think so, agree that marriage is a 50-50 proposition. It just doesn't work out for a man to make all the rules and decisions.

Samuel Chisolm, 207 Calhoun Street, Trenton, auto mechanic for Turner Motors: Yes, I think so, and my husband and wife, especially if it affects both of their lives. I feel they can be happier if they make decisions together. I think the concept of the dumb wife is going out of style even in Europe.

Francis Belaire, Pretty Brook Road, chauffeur: That depends on what is being discussed. For example, in buying a home, the woman's decision may affect her husband and wife, especially if it affects both of their lives. I feel they can be happier if they make decisions together. I think the concept of the dumb wife is going out of style even in Europe.

Louis Carnevale, 26 Harris Road, electronic technician: Being a European I would agree that men should make all the major decisions. I don't say that men should consult with their wives but the final decision should be theirs.

Mrs. Jane Ronallo, Quaker Road, housewife: I think this is a 50-50 proposition so why shouldn't they come to their wives for advice? They may have as much say as the men do. The majority of the wives do in this country, anyway.

Solomon E. Quila, Princeton Seminary student: Oh, I don't think so! Marriage is a partnership and it is justifiable for a man to advise his wife, not so much for a solution but for an opportunity to let the wife offer whatever he can. If she is paired in life and should be given a chance to know what problems are confronting her husband and other men, to help in arriving at a solution, I believe that being a partner in life, wives might be able to have the final say. I think wives should speak. Psychologically, I think it would give them a feeling of being important in their relationship with their husbands. In fact, that alone is enough for husbands going to their wives for advice. It shows you trust her and it would ease the tension of having to bear a problem alone. One of the reasons that Americans leave the countries of the West, particularly the United States, is this equality between husband and wife. Men get married which is evident in the Orient, and which, I feel, strengthens a marriage so much.

Mrs. Lewis McKay, Plainsboro housewife: No, I don't think they do. I think it is a lot easier on the husband if he can go to his wife. It helps him to be more confident and it is a little easier for him to share his problems. I know I like to go to my husband when I have a decision to make. I feel my husband is better talking it over with him.

Pat Romano, Altamawr Avenue, Trenton, seamstress: Centerville Repair. Yes, I think so. Each man should have the right to make his own decisions. I feel that is the best way. Make the decision and then let the woman follow.

Paul Hollander, Spruce Street, graduate student, sociology: No, I don't feel it is important. This is a man's world, especially trying to share in the solutions of their major problems. But it doesn't mean that women should acquire a preponderance in decision-making, of course. That would also be rather unhealthy. But on main decisions, consultation with wives is desirable.

Miss Elizabeth Stewart, 279 Franklin Avenue, statistical assistant, ETC. Nope, I think most of these decisions will affect their wives and I feel a wife should have a chance to share in anything that affects her, either directly or indirectly. Wives should have a chance to speak their piece.

Chris M. Stevens, Princeton Seminary graduate student: No, I think so. I think in the modern system the wife is usually considered as mature as the husband. I personally go to my wife. I personally consider all problems of the family. I think this is a product of contemporary society. I agree that 50-50 was not as dominant as it is today but I don't feel this equality and going to my wife for advice means as much as it did. I feel I can look at my opinions with the perspective of a person of the opposite sex.

William Bailey, Forrest Research Center, technician: Well, I don't think American men go to their wives as much as they create sort of a family council situation. If something affects the entire family, financially, educationally, in some other way, they will discuss the thing together. If it is a specific momentary situation where you need an immediate decision and there is no time for consultation, then a fellow should maintain his legal head of the household authority and make the decision. Psychologically, I think all men expect their wives to look up to them.

NEW TITLE, MORE WORK
Mooney Needs 8-3 Day Week.
A new hall has been ordered for Robert F. Mooney, 31, Borough Administrator, who was scheduled to be named to the top post of Borough Administrator at this week's session of the Mayor and Council. This will give him clear title to the "hut" of Borough officialdom—although at times it seems as though he's at the vortex of a whirlpool.

"I just even quit around here in July," said August, "and more, he said the other day, between phone calls. "And I were short of help—one of the girls is out sick."

"The auditors are floating around somewhere. I got in early this morning to see the new audit book. It's not finished a rough draft of the minutes of the Council meeting. Now I have to ... the phone rang again.

"That was the Engineer's office about the explosion at the sewage plant. The insurance adjuster called a while ago."

"Now where is he?" Well, I've been with the Borough since April 1946," was made good in January. "He's still five months later. The same insurance adjuster called a while ago."

BUSINESS In Princeton

HOME SITE OPENS

In Lawrence Township, Pine Knoll at Lawrence, a 33-home development on Princeton Pike in Lawrence Township, will open this Thursday. The development is being built by Pine Knoll Construction Corporation.

The site is a mile and a half from downtown Princeton, between Trenton and six and a half miles from Princeton. It was formerly a nursery specializing in trees, most of which the developer plans to retain.

The homes will be in split-level and two-story colonial designs. They will be priced at $24,000 and $25,000, and may be purchased with a ten percent down payment.

The first home is an eight-room house and has a plantation-style front porch with five columns. It contains four bedrooms, two and a half baths, family room and outdoor patio. The kitchen includes a windowed breakfast area.

The two-story colonial is in the formal center hall tradition and features a wood-burning fireplace in the family room, plus eight rooms, including four bedrooms, a kitchen with breakfast area, and seven and a half bathrooms and several laundry areas.

A new elementary school has been built on the grounds. The Lawrence Shopping Center is a mile away. Other schools are nearby. The immediate area is the site is 120 feet above sea level, one of the highest points between New York and Philadelphia.

Builders of Pine Knoll at Lawrence have been constructing homes in Princeton for the past five years. Their custom-made homes in the Lake Carnegie area were in the $30-$30,000 bracket.

LIGHTS REDUCED

On Radio — The Nassau Broadcasting Company has announced the reduction by two-thirds of the power of lights atop six towers for radio stations WNEW and WNEW-FM. The reduction was made after the company obtained modification of its construction permit from the Federal Communications Commission.

As a result of the modification, the company said, only one of the towers will now have a 500-watt non-flashing beacon. Each of the others will have a 100-watt non-flashing beacon. The change was made in a team crew late last week, the company said.

Beware of Ticks!

The New Jersey State Dept. warns citizens, campers, hikers, fishermen and dogs owners to Beware of Ticks. The state's Division of Fish & Game, the State's Forest Ranger Service, the Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, tularemia and other diseases, commonly spread by ticks, are commonly found in New Jersey in early summer.

One is the American dog tick, brown or tan, with dark markings on its back. The second is the brown dog tick. It is reddish brown and attaches itself to the dog's fur. It may move to the human's head, neck and torso. The department said a vaccine is available at Rockwood Mountain's post office. A tick is usually found on a dog's head, neck and torso. It is likely to be removed by the owner if he sees it. If there is evidence of a bite, the department said, the tick should be washed off with soap and water and disinfected. It can be dipped in crude phenol.

Trenton. The winner, in addition to being awarded the $1,000 check, will receive the $100 travel fund. He will be the guest of the Hotel Hildene during the week of Dec. 14-20. The department said, "This year, contestants will appear in bathing suits and evening gowns and the beauty pageant will be based on beauty, poise, deportment, figure and figure and $1,000.

SERVICES REVISED
The State of New Jersey United Community Fund has allocated a total of $85,259 to six family and child care programs during the current fiscal year. The services "indicates one of the finest programs that can be found in any community," the United Fund said. The Family Service Center, Child Guidance Center, Homemakers Services, Visiting Nurse Association, Senior Citizens' Council, Senior Center, the City of United Fund and the Council of Community Services have coordinated the efforts of the three groups.

Family Service has revised its bylaws and has enlarged its work in the area of family guidance. The Homemakers Center is providing a service of diagnosis and treatment of children who present difficulties in emotional adjustment to the community. Senior Center is providing emergency services for families whose illness or disability makes it impossible for them to care for their children. Nurses School provides a trained staff of teachers to care for the children of mothers who are unable to care for them. Senior Center is also providing special training for registered nurses with special training in infant care.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK—I

(This is the first of a series of four articles on Princeton football prospects for 1962.)

Picture is bright. Football strength in entering classes runs in cycles, and it was wholly logical that the bonanzas of players produced at Princeton were followed by a dearth of good material in the Class of 1962. Although the numbers may seem down, the law of averages should dictate, proving in the long ball, class to be the poorest football class at Princeton since 1952.

For three straight seasons, the Tiger coaching staff justified for this weakness, compensation being offered to add only no added strength at the sophomore level, then seeking to blend a squad composed primarily of veterans and rookies. This, finally, made do with sophomores and juniors and virtually nothing in the way of three-year veterans.

Now, that weakness has at last been translated into a plus in pre-season estimates of Princeton strength, so much so that it may well be duplicated in years to come. For example:

• Only 11 lettermen graduated, in contrast to normal numbers ranging from 14 to 16. The 11, four-some action on the more than ten percent of the total plays last fall.

• Only one of the 11 starting position men at the end of graduation, and only four members of the 1961 team were in at the kickoff for the climactic November games.

• The entire starting backfield returns intact, and letterman availability at graduation is right again. Seven positions are two deep or better.

Here and there throughout the Ivy League, other teams will begin with optimism, but consider the fact that too many are lighter than that. This applies at both Harvard and Dartmouth — in fact, there is equal reason to believe that the Tigers' 1961 game between the Indians and Princeton will decide the league championship as it has on several occasions in recent years. The Indians' 213 points of eager ability will be distinctly missed.

Guard: Again, only one, but he was good. A third-string back as a sophomore, Andy Conner switched to tackle, earned his letter as a junior and was a solid star as a senior last year. His 213 points of eager ability will be distinctly missed.

Tackles: Only one, but he was good. A third-string back

PAST AND PRESENT: Ed Weinhemeyer (left), captain of last year's football team, with Dan Terpactz on the occasion of the latter's election to lead the 1962 eleven. Coach Dick Colman's smile will carry over into the new season—losses by graduation are lighter than at any time since the war.

that had many musts done, and it will take time, but because the task is markedly simpler this season than in other years, a fast start and continuity will be the rule.

The ends are in the elite class to the very end and are anticipated developments for the 1962 season.

For example: Ed Weinhemeyer, captain of the 1961 team.

By positions, these 11 players have been lost by graduation:

Ends: The one spot on the team which has bested when the Class of 1962 departed Hank Large, the only all-Ivy selection from Princeton a year ago, will be difficult to fill in place on the left side. He saw action in almost 50 percent of the games, and for 145 yards a fine blocker and solid on defense.

Jim Hunter, just a step beyond Large in total action and credited with matching 11 passes for two touchdowns, was a two-year end, Olin West, promising but stalled early in October by an injury, and Allen Hough, most frequently used, caught on one of the quartet who must be replaced.

Tackles: Only one, but he was good. A third-string back as a sophomore, Andy Conner switched to tackle, earned his letter as a junior and was a solid star as a senior last year. His 213 points of eager ability will be distinctly missed.

Guard: Again, only one, but he was good. A third-string back as a sophomore, Andy Conner switched to tackle, earned his letter as a junior and was a solid star as a senior last year. His 213 points of eager ability will be distinctly missed.

test of the season, a nine-inning affair, by shaving over three runs in the top half of the second, fourth and fifth staves off a two-inning ERA rally that died with the tying marker on third. Ron Kling was the winner, Art Hahn the loser.

In another overtime affair, Opinon Research almost recorded its first victory of the season when it challenged Research into the eighth inning, tied at 8-all. But the ERC attack broke loose for six runs in the top half of the frame, the cellar-dwellers could not rally with only two and it was a 14-10 final. Roger Cole, Bob Eastman and Don Machuak shone for the victors; Joe Castora had a four-for-four performance for ERC.

A make-up game between O'Donahue and West Blank latter, 14-6, saw Tom Blank coasted home with the win following a nine-run fifth. Fred Gunning, Ed Kluznar, Paul Berney and Ron Kling had three hits apiece.

Fine relief hurled by Steve Vorni in his pitching debut gave James J. Whealen his 14th triumph over Columbian Carbon. Coming on in the fourth with the score tied at 7-all, he held off the dose of hits in the final four rounds and was supported by his teammates in the top of the sixth. Herb Smith singled, tripled and homered for IRL.

PRINCETON TOWNSHIP RIVERSIDE SCHOOL

You'll like it . . . a home of character, commodious appointments, and superlative shade and privacy. Eight thoughtfully planned rooms and two and one-half baths meet the specific requirements of the modern family. We believe you will find the living room, dining room, sitting room inviting, and the den a perfect "all-purpose" room; the four corner bedrooms and two baths on the upper floor afford additional space and convenience. There is attic storage, a light, dry basement which may be finished as a children's recreation room.

ASSORTED POTENTIAL BUYS

Majestic evergreens, inviting white brick house, secluded acre, fine West End area—an incomparable combination. House has an air of elegance yet manages to be cozy too. Departed owners' reluctance to have beloved home sit empty and unloved may mean a real bargain for a speedy buyer! Asking $55,000.

Newish house, near-new condition Extras: handsome oversized family room, tucked-away den, pretty lot, safe but no fence, brook 3 bds. Commitments elsewhere by present owner could help someone "steal" this one.

Asking $32,000

Princeton "country" ranch. Stuning living rm., 4-bdrm., 2½ baths. Dogwood-filled grounds. Neighbors are friendly but respect privacy too. Owner, tired of renting, finally wants to sell. In terms of location, space and construction, we think the price is remarkably fair. $42,000. We gem on appealing Western Bouvah street, easy walk to town. Minimum grounds with enclosed "green garden". Lovely condition. It's not the asking or possible selling price that makes this one a buy—it's the fact that there are no more like it around.

Handsome stone home on highly desirable street. Bedrooms, fireplaces, galore! Garage apartment, revivable but not necessarily georgeous. Front door of stone throughout but with the work done, the house will be a high-priced $55,000.
